UNDER SIEGE: An Iraqi youth carries a wounded boy away from the scene of a car bombing in Mosul on Thursday. Insurgents in Iraq launched a broad offensive, with violence erupting in at least six cities. The day's worst bloodshed came in Mosul, where the U.S. military said 62 people died in car bombs.

Deadly Attacks Shake Iraq

More than 100 dead as violence surges ahead of handover

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Insurgents set off car bombs and seized police stations Thursday in an offensive aimed at creating chaos ahead of next week's handover of power to a new Iraqi government. U.S. and Iraqi forces regained control in heavy fighting, but the day's violence killed more than 100 people, including three U.S. soldiers.

Abu Musab al-Zarqawi's terror network claimed responsibility for the attacks. Most of the casualties were Iraqi civilians. A large number were killed in simultaneous car bombings in the northern city of Mosul, but some also died as U.S. troops battled the guerrillas. At least 320 people were wounded, including 12 Americans.

The broad offensive — with violence in at least six cities — was the most extensive since attacks in early April. It showed a strength to the insurgency that appeared to surprise even U.S. officials who have been warning that guerrillas would try to sabotage the transfer of power.

The U.S. military responded with heavy firepower, dropping 11 500-pound bombs and a 2,000-pound bomb.

The assaults were launched in the morning, when black-clad guerrillas attacked police stations and government complexes in Baghdad, Baqouba, Mosul, Ramadi and Mahaweel. U.S. troops and insurgents traded heavy fire on the outskirts of Fallujah.

Coalition officials said the offensive could augur escalated attacks in coming days.

"We underestimated the nature of the insurgency that we might face during this period, and so the insurgency that we are looking at now ... has become a serious problem for us," U.S. Secretary of State Colin Powell told the British Broadcasting Corp. ROBERT H. REID (AP)

ART

Paint Job

If you're riding through a Texas Panhandle wheatfield and come across some vintage Cadillacs planted nose down in the ground, don't call for help. It's an art installation, not a car crash. The 10 old Caddys have been adorned with new coats of paint and graffiti for the 30th anniversary of what started as a three-dimensional environmental sculpture along Interstate 40. Amarillo businessman and art patron Stanley Marsh was the first to spray-paint one of the newly coated Caddys at the installation, created for him in 1974 by the Ant Farm, a radical art and design collective. After that, visitors with spray cans followed suit. (AP)

FOOD

It's the Moosiest!

It's healthy and tasty, for those with expensive tastes. Farmers in northern Sweden are milking moose and making cheese, which they sell for a lot of dough — nearly $500 a pound. Buyers include upscale hotels and restaurants in Sweden. Christer Johansson and his wife, Ulla, started their 59-acre dairy farm "Moose House" seven years ago in Bjursholm, and claim it is the only moose dairy farm in Europe. The Johanssons currently have 14 moose in the fields but only three — "Gullan," "Haelga" and "Juna" — can be milked. The farm attracts about 25,000 visitors a year. (AP)

UNFUNNINESS

Send Out the Clowns

Country singer Michael Martin Murphey wasn't amused by the bawdy humor of clowns at the Buffalo Bill Rodeo. Murphey, who was honored on Saturday at the Nebraska Days festival in North Platte, Neb., for promoting family values in his work, says the clowns are sending the wrong message. Audience member Sue Elmschaeuser said that one clown, after spotting Miss Rodeo America, exclaimed, "Looking at her makes me want to go home and slap my wife." (AP)

Ladies, don't get miffed if your man is out at the strip club. He may just think it's time to get politically active. A Cleveland gentlemen's club is offering a new service — voter registration — and asking other clubs to do the same. At Circus in the Flats, servers supply patrons with registration cards, pens and instructions. And dancers mail letters urging thousands of other clubs to help register voters. Club co-owner Angelina Spencer said she has signed up about 225 workers and customers. (AP)

Energy Papers To Remain Sealed

Supreme Court sends back lawsuit seeking Cheney task force files

WASHINGTON | The Supreme Court protected the Bush administration Thursday from having to reveal potentially embarrassing details about Vice President Dick Cheney's energy task force until after the election, sending the case back to a lower court.

The justices voted 7-2 to have an appeals court decide whether a federal open government law could be used to compel the administration to publicly release task force documents, dragging out an already 3-year-old fight over the records.

The two groups that sued to get access to the task force documents argued the public had a right to know whether energy company executives played a key role in crafting the industry-friendly recommendations.

Vice President Cheney will not immediately have to release task force papers.

While the case was about privacy, that issue has been largely overshadowed by questions involving Justice Antonin Scalia. He refused to step aside after it was revealed he and Cheney took a hunting trip together after the court agreed to hear the case. Scalia sided with the majority, though he made it clear he felt the court could have dismissed the lawsuit. GINA HOLLAND (AP)

Bush Interviewed in CIA Leak Probe

WASHINGTON | Federal investigators questioned President George W. Bush for more than an hour Thursday as the investigation into the leak of a CIA operative's name reached into the Oval Office.

The president was interviewed for 70 minutes by U.S. Attorney Patrick J. Fitzgerald, the head of the Justice Department investigation, and by members of his team. The only other person in the room was Jim Sharp, a private trial lawyer and former federal prosecutor hired by Bush, said White House press secretary Scott McClellan.

Investigators want to know who leaked the name of Valerie Plame, an undercover CIA operative, to columnist Robert Novak last July. Disclosure of an undercover officer's identity can be a federal crime.

Fitzgerald declined, through a spokesman, to comment on the Bush interview, but legal experts said it could indicate the probe was nearing an end. (AP)

Turning the Lens on Moore

As 'Fahrenheit 9/11' hits theaters, critics plan counteroffensive

LOS ANGELES | Michael Moore's critics are turning up the temperature with a book and documentary intended to debunk his methods as the filmmaker's "Fahrenheit 9/11," his assault on President Bush's actions regarding the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks, hits theaters Friday.

On Tuesday, David T. Hardy and Jason Clarke will publish "Michael Moore Is a Big Fat Stupid White Man," in which the authors accuse Moore of "serial mendacity." Hardy and Clarke take issue with matters in several of Moore's films and books, such as the parallels Moore draws between the Ku Klux Klan and the National Rifle Association in "Bowling for Columbine."

Filmmaker Michael Wilson hopes to have his documentary "Michael Moore Hates America" in theaters late this summer as a rebuttal to "Fahrenheit 9/11." Wilson said he admired Moore's first movie, "Roger & Me," but found "Bowling for Columbine" troublesome.

Moore declined an interview for this article, although he has previously said his film is "an op-ed piece," and not a work of journalism.

"Fahrenheit 9/11" underwent thorough factual scrutiny, said Harvey Weinstein, whose Miramax banner was prohibited by parent company Disney from releasing the movie. Weinstein and his brother, Bob, bought back the film and arranged other distribution.

Death Row Appeals Rejected

High court refuses to make 2002 sentencing decision retroactive

WASHINGTON | The U.S. Supreme Court closed off appeals for more than 100 death row inmates Thursday, blunting the effect of an earlier ruling that judges cannot determine by themselves whether a convicted killer should die.

By a 5-4 vote, the court refused to make its 2002 ruling, which stipulated that death sentences must be imposed by juries, retroactive to condemned inmates who had already exhausted all their direct appeals. The ruling means at least four U.S. states — Arizona, Idaho, Montana and Nebraska — won't have to hold new sentencing hearings or allow death sentences to be reduced to life in prison.

In a separate ruling Thursday, the high court opened the door to new death row challenges on other grounds in Texas, which leads the United States in the number of executions. A third capital punishment ruling preserved a death sentence for a Pennsylvania serial killer.

CDC: Cancer Survival Rates Improving

ATLANTA | The number of cancer survivors in the United States has more than tripled to almost 10 million over the past three decades because of advances in detection and treatment, the government said Thursday.

Also, patients diagnosed between 1995 and 2000 have an estimated 64 percent chance of surviving five years, compared with a 50 percent rate — a coin toss — three decades ago, a study by National Cancer Institute and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention found.

The number of cancer survivors — defined as anyone diagnosed with cancer, no matter how recently — soared from 3 million in 1971 to 9.8 million in 2001, the study found.

Medical advances have also helped children with cancer live much longer, the study said.

Bombs Kill 4 in Turkey

One device detonates outside hotel where Bush will be staying

ISTANBUL, TURKEY | In back-to-back attacks Thursday, bombs shattered a bus and exploded outside a hotel where President George W. Bush is set to stay this weekend. Four people were killed and 17 injured in the violence, which heightened security concerns over the upcoming NATO summit.

Authorities said militant leftists were suspected in the blast in Istanbul, which killed four people and injured 14, and an earlier attack outside the Ankara hotel that injured three people, including two police officers. Three suspects were detained in Istanbul, police said.

Militant leftist groups are also active in Turkey, as are Kurdish and Islamic groups. Al Qaeda-linked suicide bombers killed more than 60 people in a series of bombings here in November.

Bush arrives in Ankara on Saturday to meet with Turkish leaders before the summit in Istanbul. Security is expected to be extremely tight at the summit, with more than 23,000 police on duty.

"Turkey is a strong and secure country. Such incidents take place in New York, in Washington, and everywhere else," Foreign Minister Abdullah Gul said.

Washington pledged that the attacks would not affect Bush's travel plans. JAMES C. HELICKE (AP)

G.I.'s Won't Be Tried in Iraqi Courts

Top general, White House say troops will be tried in U.S. courts

WASHINGTON | American troops in Iraq would remain immune from prosecution in local courts after the occupation officially ends, under an agreement in principle between the United States and the interim government in Baghdad.

Chief occupation official L. Paul Bremer is still negotiating the plan before the June 30 handover of political power, the general nominated as post-occupation military commander said Thursday.

Gen. George W. Casey Jr. told the Senate Armed Services Committee at a confirmation hearing that U.S. officials are working to get the same protections for American civilian contractors, who are in Iraq by the tens of thousands in military support positions.

Casey, a four-star general, was nominated by President George W. Bush to succeed departing Lt. Gen.

Ricardo Sanchez.

White House spokesman Scott McClellan said members of the military would face justice in the American legal system rather than in local courts. "You're talking about parts of the world where due process may not be guaranteed," McClellan said.

He said the United States and Iraq already have agreed in principle on an immunity arrangement. (AP)

Britain's BBC May Take On Al-Jazeera

LONDON | The British Broadcasting Corp. said Thursday it was in talks with the government about launching a 24-hour Arabic-language TV news channel to compete with the Qatar-based satellite station Al-Jazeera.

The channel, which would offer a mix of news, information, discussion programs and documentaries, would broadcast across the Middle East and would also be available to viewers in Britain and Europe, the network said. Most programs would be broadcast from London, but the channel would have staff based across the Middle East.

The BBC said it was discussing the plans with the Foreign Office, which also provides funding for the BBC World Service radio network. In a statement, the broadcaster said it could not go into detail about the plan because talks with the government were continuing.

The BBC — which is publicly funded but operates independently — ran an Arabic channel in the mid-1990s. It shut down after two years when its funding dried up.

An Arabic channel would be a rival for Al-Jazeera, which has aired many of Osama bin Laden's speeches and been accused of anti-Western bias. (AP)

President Hosni Mubarak, in Germany for treatment for a slipped disc, gave an interview to Egyptian television from his hospital room to reassure Egyptians that he will return home soon. It is very rare for state media to report on the health of the 76-year-old president, and the appearance seemed designed to counter rumors that he was seriously ill. "It's as if I am on vacation for a week," Mubarak said. He did not say when he would return. (AP)

A New South Wales state tribunal later overturned the ruling, and the hall is set to open in October. (AP)

U.S. Warns of Sudan Crisis

Powell to visit amid claims of ethnic cleansing

UNITED NATIONS | Satellite photos of the Darfur region of western Sudan show destruction in nearly 400 villages, and there have been reports of fighting or threatened attacks in every camp for displaced people, the U.S. aid chief said Wednesday.

Andrew Natsios, administrator of the U.S. Agency for International Development, warned that time is running out to help 2 million Sudanese in desperate need of aid in Darfur. He said his agency's estimate that 350,000 could die of disease and malnutrition over the next nine months "is conservative."

Fighting between Arab militias and African residents has killed thousands of people and forced more than 1 million to flee their homes. International rights groups say the government has backed the Arab fighters in an ethnic cleansing campaign against the African villagers.

Natsios put the blame for the crisis squarely on the Sudanese government, saying U.S. and U.N. reports from the country show clearly that the Sudanese military is directly connected to Arab militias, known as the Janjaweed, that are fighting in Darfur.

Powell

Meanwhile, the State Department announced Thursday that Secretary of State Colin Powell will travel to western Sudan next week. It is a rare visit: Sudan was last visited by a U.S. secretary of state in 1978, when Cyrus Vance stopped in Khartoum.

State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said Powell will make the visit after accompanying President Bush to a NATO summit meeting in Istanbul, Turkey.

The United States has sent more than a dozen humanitarian flights to Darfur but has said that government restrictions have limited its ability to meet the needs of victims. "There is an extreme urgency," Boucher said. (AP)

Saudis OK Guns for Foreigners

Country eases ban after spate of brutal attacks on Westerners

RIYADH, SAUDI ARABIA | Foreign residents of Saudi Arabia will be allowed to carry guns, the police minister announced after a series of militant bombings, attacks and kidnappings targeting Western workers in the kingdom.

"If [a foreign resident] senses danger, he can carry a personal weapon as he does in his country," Prince Nayef said late Wednesday. Under Saudi law, foreigners cannot have weapons, while Saudis must apply for a permit. Nayef's comments suggested foreigners would be allowed to seek permits, though he did not elaborate.

Al Qaeda-linked militants in Saudi Arabia have stepped up their campaign of attacks, targeting foreign workers with an assault on a Riyadh housing compound in May that killed 22 people and the kidnapping and beheading of an American, Paul M. Johnson Jr.

The bloodshed has spread fear among the 8.8 million foreigners working in Saudi Arabia. (AP)

N. Korea Presses U.S. in Nuke Talks

BEIJING | North Korea reportedly submitted a massive request Thursday for energy aid equal to one-quarter of its annual consumption in exchange for freezing its nuclear weapons program — a step far short of the total dismantling demanded by Washington in six-nation talks on their dispute.

The North's request came a day after U.S. envoys submitted an offer of energy assistance and security guarantees if the North abandons its nuclear ambitions.

In Washington, a senior U.S. official said that North Korean envoy Kim Gye Gwan told his U.S. counterpart James Kelly during a rare one-on-one meeting that North Korea will test a nuclear weapon if the United States does not accept Pyongyang's proposal. (AP)

No Jail Term in Box Cutter Case

Nathaniel Heatwole hid banned items on a commercial airplane

BALTIMORE | A college student who hid box cutters on airplanes to expose weaknesses in post-9/11 security was sentenced Thursday to two years supervised probation and a $500 fine.

Nathaniel Heatwole, of Damascus, also must serve 100 hours of community service and reimburse his parents for up to $500 in legal expenses, said U.S. District Court Judge Paul Grimm.

Heatwole, 21, told the judge that his intentions were "positive and constructive." He said he never meant to embarrass the Transportation Safety Administration or put anyone in any danger.

federal investigators, who asked him to make a video that could be used to train federal airport screeners.

Heatwole had placed three disassembled box cutters and razor blades — with tape over the sharp edges — on a Southwest Airlines flight Sept. 14, along with matches and modeling clay made to look like plastic explosives. BRIAN WITTE (AP)

Md. Added 8,100 Jobs Last Month

BALTIMORE | Employers in all major industries in Maryland added about 8,100 jobs in May, the largest surge during May since 1990, according to the Department of Labor, Licensing and Regulation.

The state maintained a 4 percent unemployment rate for the fourth consecutive month, a drop from 4.5 percent in May 2003. The national average for May was 5.6 percent. (AP)

Bad air out.
Renewable energy in.

Clean air clears the way for summer fun! D.C. can clean the air by making the switch to renewable energy.

It's a slam dunk.

Clean energy will:

Reduce Code Purple and Red Days: During these days, air quality exceeds EPA's health-based standards, making it unsafe to enjoy the outdoors.

Improve the Health of District Residents: Clean energy cleans our air and protects our health, especially that of young children and the elderly. Particles from power plants send over 3,700 people to the emergency room each year and are responsible for almost 20,000 asthma attacks in the D.C. metropolitan area each year.*

Reduce Energy Bills: Renewable energy is both feasible and affordable. It moves us towards decreased reliance on foreign fossil fuels and would help stabilize spiking natural gas prices.

Create Jobs: Clean energy production is more labor intensive than traditional energy production. Wind and solar power each provide 40 percent more jobs per dollar than does coal.

WASHINGTON | The parking lots at Metrorail stations are set to go cashless on Monday, and officials say some commuters may be caught unprepared.

People who want to park their cars at Metro lots next week will need a SmartTrip cards — pre-paid cards purchased at farecard kiosks

Metro officials say they will have extra parking staff at lots on Monday to help with the transition. They say they're allowing customers about a week-long grace period.

Those who don't regularly park for a full workday can still use the system's 3,400 metered spaces. (AP)

Howard Co. May Buy Amphitheater

Merriweather Post Pavilion threatened by nearby development

COLUMBIA, MD. | Howard County officials said they are considering buying Merriweather Post Pavilion, the 15,000-seat amphitheater that has been a landmark cultural institution since the early days of the planned community of Columbia.

Built in 1967 for classical music performances, the amphitheater offers pop, rock and country acts. Over the years, it has staged concerts by legendary rock groups such as Led Zeppelin, the Who and the Grateful Dead. It also serves as one of the major locales for high school graduations in the county.

But its future was in doubt because of planned development nearby. County officials announced Wednesday plans to spend as much as $100,000 to study the feasibility of buying it from the Rouse Co.

"Merriweather is a huge part of the Howard County community, both culturally and economically," said county spokeswoman Victoria Goodman.

Dennis W. Miller, a Rouse vice president and general manager of Columbia, said the developer is selling the venue — and the 9 acres surrounding it, but not the parking lots — with the intent that it would be converted into an enclosed, year-round facility. Rouse has not set a price, and Miller said he has received a number of unsolicited bids but wants to give the county the first opportunity. (AP)

Court Rejects FCC Ruling

Won't give media cos. broader access to markets

NEW YORK | A federal appeals court on Thursday largely reversed a landmark set of rule changes from the Federal Communications Commission that would have allowed companies to own more radio and television stations in the same market.

The decision by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit in Philadelphia marked a major setback to the FCC's efforts to deregulate media ownership rules and a victory for public interest groups that had opposed the measures.

The rule changes have been the subject of much debate about the concentration of media ownership ever since they were announced in June 2003. The plaintiffs said the rules would limit the diversity on the airwaves, while the FCC said the old rules were outdated.

The court kept in place an order it made last September blocking the rules from taking effect. However, it also found that the FCC was within its rights to repeal a blanket prohibition on companies owning both a newspaper and a television station in the same city.

"This is a big, big win for diversity," said Andrew Jay Schwartzman, CEO of the Media Access Project, a Washington-based law firm that led the lawsuit against the FCC.

FCC chairman Michael Powell called the court's decision "deeply troubling" and said it "hampers the flexibility of the agency to protect the American public." (AP)

Government Asks Stewart Judge to Deny Retrial Bid

NEW YORK | The government urged a federal judge on Thursday to reject Martha Stewart's latest bid for a new trial, which is based on charges that a Secret Service ink expert lied on the witness stand.

Federal prosecutors filed court papers saying the testimony of ink expert Larry Stewart had no effect on the jury's guilty verdict against the celebrity homemaker and former stockbroker Peter Bacanovic.

Larry Stewart testified about ink analysis of a worksheet prepared by Bacanovic that reflected stocks in Martha Stewart's portfolio. Bacanovic was acquitted of a charge of doctoring the worksheet. But prosecutors say Stewart lied by saying he took part in the ink testing. (AP)

AOL Buys Online Ad Co. For $435M

MCLEAN, VA. | Internet giant America Online Inc. is making its first major acquisition in several years, buying Advertising.com Inc. for $435 million in cash, the companies announced Thursday.

AOL chairman and chief executive Jonathan Miller said the deal reflects AOL's confidence in the once-shaky online advertising business.

"Online advertising is back," Miller said in a conference call with reporters.

Advertising.com specializes in the "pay-for-performance" segment of the online advertising industry. Advertisers pay only for each customer that advertising.com can deliver, either through an online registration or directing a web surfer to an advertiser's site. (AP)

Howell sets a course record on the first round of the Booz Allen Classic

POTOMAC, MD. | Charles Howell III set a course record with a 10-under-par 61 — including a 28 on his final nine holes at the TPC at Avenel — and held a three-shot lead after the first round of the Booz Allen Classic on Thursday.

On a perfect day with the wind calm and the greens soft and smooth, Howell carded the lowest opening-round score this year on the PGA Tour. It also was the second-lowest overall round of the season.

Howell went birdie-eagle-eagle on the three par-5s and made six putts of 15 feet or longer.

"It was one of those funny days where everything tends to work your way," said Howell, who called the round the best of his career. "The best you can do is get out of the way and let it continue to happen."

"Some people call it a 'zone' or 'flow' or whatever.... You get that feeling that you can do nothing wrong."

Scores were low all day. Seventy-six players were under par — exactly 76 more than broke even in Sunday's brutal final round of the U.S. Open at Shinnecock Hills. Howell finished his Open adventure with an 83.

"I don't reckon I've ever had a 22-shot swing before in two rounds of golf," he said.

The super-fast greens at the Open still rate as a sore point for many players, including Howell. He went from 3-over to 16-over on Sunday.

The only downside to Howell's record round on Thursday was that there were so few people to witness it. A gallery of exactly 32 fans walked with him down the fairway along No. 8, the hole at which he sank a 20-foot putt to get to 10 under.

BALL, STARS ALIGNED: Charles Howell III, with caddy Brendan McCartain, lines up a putt on the 17th hole Thursday during the Booz Allen Classic in Potomac.

Interest is down because most of golf's top players are taking the week off following the Open.

Howell leads 1999 champion Rich Beem and Olin Browne by three strokes. Jeff Sluman is four back.

Howell set the record despite two bogeys in his first six holes. Starting on the back nine, he got to No. 16 before making par. On the front nine, he went birdie-birdie-eagle-birdie-birdie from Nos. 4 through 8, giving him a brief thought of going for the magical 59 with a hole-in-one from the high tee at the ninth.

"It popped into my head," Howell said. "But then you take a look at how small that green is from the top of that hill, and that thought is fleeting."

Instead, Howell landed 30 feet short of the pin and two-putted for par.

Howell's round is one shot better than David Duval's year-old course record. The 28 over nine holes tops the mark of 29 shared by Brad Bryant (1991) and Jay Williamson (2000). JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

BASEBALL | Struck Out Luis Ramirez set a minor league record by striking out 12 straight batters, and didn't get a win to show for it. Ramirez, a right-hander in the Baltimore Orioles' organization, had 15 strikeouts in five innings for the Class A Aberdeen IronBirds on Wednesday night. Working on a pitch count, he was removed after the fifth inning of Aberdeen's 6-3 loss to the Jamestown Jammers. Aberdeen led 3-0 when Ramirez was removed. His replacement, Bryce Chamberlin, gave up four runs without recording an out in the sixth. Ramirez was a non-drafted free agent from Curacao. His career record is 8-5 with a 2.85 ERA. (AP)

Roddick on the Rise

American unleashes first-round victory at rainy Wimbledon

TENNIS | When the skies finally cleared at Wimbledon, Andy Roddick was raring to go. He whacked aces, hit forehand winners and even caught a ball in his cap.

With his customary force and flair, Roddick earned a rain-delayed first-round victory Thursday, beating Wang Yeu-Tzuoo 6-3, 7-5, 6-4.

Roddick's niftiest maneuver came after he won the opening game of the final set. A frustrated Wang slammed the ball into the grass, and when it skipped over the net, Roddick took off his cap and snared it as he walked to the changeover chair.

"I had a lot of built-up energy," he said.

That's because the match was halted by rain Tuesday with Roddick leading 4-2 in the first set, and he waited in vain to play for 9 ½ hours before Wednesday's schedule was declared a washout.

When the match finally resumed, Roddick came out swinging. He finished with 18 aces, reaching 144 mph on his serve, and repeatedly angled inside-out forehands beyond Wang's reach.

The No. 2-seeded Roddick was relieved to take his first step toward an appealing potential rematch in the final against No. 1 Roger Federer. Last year Federer won his first Grand Slam title at Wimbledon after beating Roddick in the semifinals.

As Roddick acknowledged, the 19-year-old Wang was also dangerous. He and Lu Yen-Hsun, who also lost Thursday, became the first players from Chinese Taipei to play Grand Slam singles in the Open era.

He reached the net twice as often as Roddick and held his own in baseline rallies, some lasting 20 shots or more. But, in the end, Roddick had too much power. He lost just 13 points on his first serve and never faced a break point.

"There's a lot of room for improvement from today," Roddick said. "I got through. That's the thing I was looking for." STEVEN WINE (AP)

Weekend Sports

Speed Demon

Driver Paul Efantis continues to rev up the drag-racing ranks

AUTO RACING | Some advice to newcomers who head to Mechanicsville, Md., this weekend: don't blink.

The NOPI Drag Racing Association heads to southern Maryland for the two-day D.C. Nationals, which will showcase the burgeoning league's best drivers — including Paul Efantis.

A native of Washington who grew up near Frederick, Md., Efantis epitomizes what the sport is about. He's a car junkie who picked up racing from his father, Efthymeos, a drag racer himself.

By the age of 9, Efantis took to dirt bikes, biding his time until he could get a driver's license. Now 23, he's probably the best drag racer in the area, and one of the NDRA's brightest stars.

All he did last year was go undefeated, win the Pro Street Tore Xbox Cup Championship and become the first to break the eight-second barrier in an import. And in this sport, a second might as well be a week.

"It doesn't seem like much time," Efantis said. "But it's an eternity."

Not one to rest on his laurels, Efantis moved up a class this year. After a shaky start, he sits in second place in the division's standings heading into Mechanicsville.

As with every event, Efantis and crew chief Rodney Gibson will tinker with the team's souped-up Toyota all weekend until Efantis can be rewarded for having a lead foot.

"There are hours of preparation for eight seconds of enjoyment," he said. MATT SWENSON (EXPRESS)

Wizards Trade Away No. 5 Draft Pick

BASKETBALL | The Dallas Mavericks agreed Wednesday night to trade Antawn Jamison to the Washington Wizards for the No. 5 pick in the draft, Jerry Stackhouse and Christian Laettner.

The Wizards had made it clear they weren't enamored with any of their choices at the top of the draft.

Taking Jamison, a proven scorer over his six-year career in Dallas and Golden State, is a much safer move, even if he is owed nearly $58 million over the next four years.

Bertuzzi Charged With Assault

HOCKEY | Canucks star Todd Bertuzzi was charged Thursday with assault for a sucker-punch that left Colorado's Steve Moore with neck injuries and prompted widespread criticism of hockey violence.

The charges — assault causing bodily harm — were announced by the criminal justice branch of the ministry of the attorney general after an investigation that lasted four months.

Bertuzzi has been ordered to appear in provincial court July 9.

The March 8 attack left Moore hospitalized with three fractured vertebrae, facial cuts, post-concussion symptoms and amnesia. Nerves in the neck area were also stretched.

Doctors say it's not known when, or if, Moore can play hockey again.

The NHL suspended Bertuzzi for the final 13 games of the regular season and Vancouver's seven playoff games.

The suspension cost Bertuzzi nearly $502,000 of his $6.8 million salary. The Canucks were also fined $250,000. Bertuzzi also was left off Canada's roster for this fall's World Cup. (AP) is more than a position, its a way of life!

QUARTERBACK

The Power of the Pigskin By Chris Bender

I went to this tiny little school in Los Angeles called UCLA; if you're a college sports fan, UCLA is something of a temple. When I was in school, we came to worship at Pauley Pavilion, dressed in traditional religious garb: Hair colored blue-and-gold, UCLA hats and T-shirts with some variation on "USC sucks."

Aaron Brooks, QB of the New Orleans Saints, former member of the Hampton Roads Boys & Girls Clubs will be honored as Humanitarian of the Year.

At some point during the pre-game calamity of drooling over the dance team and tripping over people with our hot dogs and Coke, the announcer would pipe up, "Ladies and Gentlemen, it's now time to meet your UCLA Bruins..." From the corner of the court, the ministers of dribble came running onto the floor—and the rafters in Pauley shook like the San Andres fault had just rocked the earth.

I've never been a good athlete. I stunk at baseball. The only dribble in basketball is from my mouth. I scored on my own team once in soccer. But I know what it's like to be part of a sports moment—to be part of that great play, great shot, doing what seemed virtually impossible only seconds before. It's that moment when a sport becomes larger than a sport—it becomes an experience larger than you.

Coach John Wooden used to say, "You cannot live a perfect day without doing something for someone who will never be able to repay you." A winning team draws more people to their games. More people mean more money spent on tickets, hot dogs, parking and souvenirs. More money for the team means more money for the team's hometown—for fixing streets, improving the quality of the schools, cutting the grass at recreation centers or offering after-school programs. The team can't ever be repaid for that—and it's all because they won a few more games.

If a sick kid gets to watch his favorite player in person, that player can never be repaid—but they've done something great. If an athlete provides support to a cause that the cause otherwise couldn't get, that athlete can never be repaid—but they've done something great. This summer, when the world's great Olympians win events, they're winning them for their people and their country, not just themselves; they're doing something great.

Gandhi said, "You must be the change you wish to see in the world." Sports create change. They are catalysts. They bring people together and give them a common cause in which to believe. There are one zillion reasons that people watch the Super Bowl, the NBA All-Star Game, the Olympics—and it's not for the ads (ok, it's partially for the ads). It's to coalesce, to bond over a common cause. To know that – across the country and world – people from all different walks of life are cramming into stadiums, sports bars, electronic stores and coffee shops to pull for the same athlete or athletes at the same moment in history. It's to be part of a moment larger than you.

A lot of us can't throw the pigskin. But we know how powerful it can be.

The Boys & Girls Club

All proceeds from the 19th Annual National Quarterback Club Awards Dinner will benefit the Boys & Girls Club of Greater Washington. The mission of Boys & Girls Clubs of Greater Washington is to help boys and girls of all backgrounds, with an emphasis on at-risk youth, build confidence, develop character and acquire the skills needed to become productive, civic-minded, responsible adults.

Over the years many things have changed but one thing remains true; children always need a safe place to go and grow. Boys & Girls Clubs of Greater Washington (BGCGW) has been that place for over a century. BGCGW roots date back to 1886, well over a century ago when it used to be called The Boys Club.

Now, Boys & Girls Clubs of Greater Washington is the largest affiliate of Boys & Girls Clubs of America. Our Clubs are designed to meet the needs of the communities we serve: in a sense they are a reflection of you! From public schools to public housing, Clubs throughout the metropolitan area come in a variety of shapes and sizes. BGCGW serves over 35,000 area youth annually in its 25 Clubs, one athletic field and a summer camp in Washington DC, Maryland and Virginia.

More than 35,000 youths served annually.

The opportunities we give young people allow them to dream again. Our staff, supported by a dedicated group of volunteers, provide programs in the five core areas of Character and Leadership Development; Education and Career Development; The Arts, Health and Life Skills; and Sports, Fitness and Recreation.

BGCGW shows kids how to turn those dreams into reality through planning, education and hard work. Help us help our children. Support The Positive Place For Kids. Support Boys & Girls Clubs of Greater Washington.

The players on the field give everything they have to the game. Blood, sweat and sometimes even tears. You understand. It's more than a game. It takes preparation and teamwork. It takes people behind the scenes making the calls, setting the plans, putting all of the pieces together. It takes unity. It takes you.

MANNINGS

By Steve Richardson

Ole Miss quarterback Eli Manning chose the same collegiate path his father Archie did. And someday soon they may re-name the stadium in Oxford, Miss., as the house Eli re-filled and expanded.

They already have an 18-mile campus-wide speed limit there in remembrance of quarterback Archie's No. 18.

But on the National Football League's futures scale, Eli may more closely resemble his older brother, Peyton, a Tennessee All-America quarterback now a star with the Indianapolis Colts.

Like Peyton, Eli Manning had a dazzling college career, but never won a league championship as a collegian and was a Heisman Trophy also-ran. Both won the Maxwell and the Johnny Unitas Golden Arm awards their senior seasons.

And like his older brother, the 6-foot-5, 218-pound Eli has oodles of talent and thus star potential as a starting quarterback in the National Football League starting with the 2004 season.

Father Archie, who had respectable, but not glittery career with the New Orleans Saints, and mother Olivia will have to split their NFL Sundays following their two quarterback sons.

"I think he is a heck of a player", NFL talent scout Gil Brandt said following the 2003 season. "More so than anything, he is a great person.

Unless Roethlisberger (Ben of Miami, Ohio) blows them away, he will be the No. 1 guy (selected in the NFL Draft)."

Surely, Eli, a native of New Orleans who wore No. 10 at Ole Miss, wouldn't slip very far, given his credentials.

He was the fifth quarterback in Southeastern Conference history to pass for more than 10,000 yards and finished with 81 career touchdown passes, third highest in SEC history. Peyton finished No. 1 in SEC yards and No. 2 in touchdowns passes during his career in Knoxville from 1994-97.

Eli's 829 career completions put him fourth in SEC history, with Peyton, of course, ranking No. 1 with 863.

Eli Manning is already a legend in Dixie. And he has managed to thrive despite the comparisons with his brother and father.

"I knew wherever I went to school there would comparisons to Peyton", Eli Manning said.

"Having the last name Manning people are going to know the name and expect certain things from you. I can't help what my last name is. All I can do is work hard to become the best player I can be.

"I have a laid back personality. I am going to try my best, but if I am not as good as Peyton or my dad, then that's just the way it goes. I've worked hard to get where I am and then that's all anybody can expect from me."

Eli Manning will forever be remembered in Oxford, Miss. His mere presence restored football pride at The Grove, helped expand the football stadium seating by 10,000 (including the addition of 28 luxury suites) and bridged more than a 30-year gap between Manning family appearances in Ole Miss New Year's Day bowls.

Archie led Ole Miss to a 27-22 victory over Arkansas in the 1970 Sugar Bowl. That was the Rebels' last New Year's Day bowl victory before this past January when Eli Manning culminated a star-studded four-year career being named the Offensive MVP of the Cotton Bowl in a 31-28 Ole Miss victory over Oklahoma State

"Eli carries it to another level",

On June 29, the Manning family will once again make history in the game of football as three members of the family will receive recognition for their success on the gridiron.

said Ole Miss coach David Cutcliffe who had the pleasure of coaching both Manning brothers. "A lot of what he's done is part of our program. He's set a work ethic for those quarterbacks and the other players in the program that will follow and carry on. That's what a leader should do."

Cutcliffe was actually the offensive coordinator at Tennessee when Peyton Manning was the quarterback. And Cutcliffe was turned down by Eli, the high school recruit, when he was at Tennessee, but he wound up coaching Eli when he took the Ole Miss job.

Cutcliffe has had a Manning in his life most of the past decade.

"I had known Coach Cutcliffe awhile through Peyton and going to games up at Tennessee", Eli Manning said. "I saw what he did with Peyton, but it was too hard to go to Tennessee. It would have been to much pressure for me to go there so soon after Peyton had been there. I had to call him and Coach Fulmer and tell them I wasn't coming to Tennessee. Two weeks later Coach Cutcliffe got the job here (at Ole Miss) and he called me again to try to get me to come to Ole Miss."

Mission accomplished.

Cutcliffe knew from the beginning Eli was going to be a special player because he showed poised when he received so much attention as a freshman redshirt at "Meet the Rebels Day."

"I think they (Peyton and Eli) are very similar players", Cutcliffe said. "They do a lot of things the same. There's no doubt he will be successful in the NFL."

"Certainly he's a product of his environment. It helped having a father and a brother who have been through the same experiences he is going through; His personality is a combination of his dad and mother. He reminds me a lot of Olivia as well. He's had a great upbringing and they are an outstanding family."

And how does he stack up with Peyton at this point in his career?

"His brother has worked with him a lot", said former Mississippi State coach Jackie Sherrill. "At this stage, Eli is much farther along than Peyton. There is not another quarterback in the nation as good as him."

Said draft expert Gil Brandt: "He's like a little kid to me because I know his dad and his brother. Everybody tries to beat him down. But this poor guy going against LSU a probably wins the game for them, if the guy doesn't miss two field goals (17-14 Ole Miss loss)."

"I think he has a slightly stronger arm (than Peyton)", Brandt added. "He is probably a little better athlete. Does the guy have Peyton's intangibles and work ethic? Peyton is an incredible guy as far as intangibles. He studies football. This is his life. You are not going to see too many people who makes the money he does, work as hard as he does."

NFL scouting gurus like Eli Manning because of his excellent size and good vision of the field. He has good instincts, excellent footwork, quick release and a nice touch on mid-range passes.

"He reminds me a lot of Dan Marino, the way he can call a play, read the defense and then check into another play", said LSU cornerback Travis Daniels.

Scouts say he his minuses are his lack of mobility and the fact he doesn't throw the deep ball extremely well. He had negative rushing yards in his career at Ole Miss. But his strong points more than make up for those negatives.

"I think he's able to formulate so much information period, but to be able to formulate it in three or four seconds", Cutcliffe said. "He can think more thoughts and make more decisions quicker than anyone I have ever been around. He's exceptionally athletically, but he's very gifted when it comes to being a student of the game. His ability to be functional with that information is the difference."

Eli Manning was at his best in his final game as a collegian against Oklahoma State. He passed for 259 yards and two touchdowns and also scored a rushing touchdown from one-yard out.

"He did a good job of reading our defense and putting them in good plays", said Oklahoma State defensive lineman Greg Richmond. "He wasn't a Heisman Trophy finalists for nothing. That field general they have is awesome. The quarterback makes all the difference in the world as far as making the right calls when the coaches send the plays in and make audibles and check-downs and getting rid of the ball quickly. He is a class act and a very good quarterback."

Eli Manning considered going into the NFL Draft after his junior season at Ole Miss.

"I felt like I needed to come back to become a better player", Eli Manning said. "I also wanted to come back and leave with the guys I came in with as freshmen. We all red-shirted our first year. I think I became a better football player and obviously we had a great season. I definitely made the right decision to come back for my senior year."

"Everything about this year has been great. That's the way it has been, the way the seniors stepped up and really played well together. To come to the Cotton Bowl and have your last game with all of those guys and get out a win. It has been a great run."

At least one of the Oklahoma State Cowboy, wide receiver Rashaun Woods, wouldn't mind seeing Eli Manning at the next level.

"He does a good job of putting the ball in his receiver's hands, Woods said. I would love to see him as my quarterback at the next level. I have seen some good quarterbacks in my day and he is up there."

Hot Potato

Florida farmers have high hopes for a new lower-carb spud

AGRICULTURE | For dieters, potatoes have been scorned, rejected and castigated, with many weight-loss programs, including the Atkins and the South Beach diets, advocating meat and cheese over high-carbohydrate potatoes, pasta and bread.

Come January, carb-counters who love potatoes may find cause to rejoice a bit. Florida growers will be pitching a Dutch potato they hope will be a hot one — it claims one-third fewer carbs than the ordinary spud.

"Consumers are going to love the flavor and appearance of this potato and the fact that it has 30 percent fewer carbohydrates compared to a standard Russet baking potato," said Chad Hutchinson, an assistant professor of horticulture at University of Florida's Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences.

Florida is the first test site in the United States for the European import, which was developed by HZPC, a seed company based in the Netherlands. The potato was developed by crossbreeding and was not genetically modified.

After five years of testing in the sandy soils in the heart of Florida's potato country, Hutchinson knew it tasted great, had a shorter growing cycle, was disease-resistant and able to handle Florida's extreme weather. He then learned about its lower-carb properties.

"That was just gravy," he said.

Independent research shows about 3.5 ounces of the new potato contains about 13 grams of carbohydrate compared to around 19 grams in the same size serving of a Russet Burbank.

Five Florida potato growers have formed the SunFresh Marketing Cooperative to grow and promote the new spud, said Jim McDowell, the sales and marketing director for the cooperative. The cooperative hasn't said what the new potato will cost.

Potatoes contribute about $120 million a year to Florida's economy. The state supplies about 60 percent of the country's fresh potato market from January to June, Hutchinson said.

"We do not store potatoes," he said, noting that many potatoes have been in storage for up to a year by the time they hit store shelves.

Linda McCashion, who represents the National Potato Promotion Board, which has launched a $4.5 million campaign marketing the spud's nutritional value, said the board is pleased new varieties are being developed.

She noted that an average potato contains only 100 calories, has no fat, is low in sodium and high in potassium, plus has some dietary fiber. It also has vitamins C and B-6.

Don Northcott, marketing manager for HZPC Americas Corp. on Prince Edward Island, Canada, is enthusiastic about the potato's prospects.

"The combination of good Florida soils, warm temperatures and the experience of Florida producers sets the stage for delivery of a fresh potato flavor treat," Northcott said.

The new baseball-size potato will be available in supermarkets and restaurants in January.

The Fire This Time

Michael Moore's 'Fahrenheit' burns Bush's administration

FILM | He didn't call it "J'Accuse!" but he might as well have.

Like Emile Zola, whose celebrated open letter assailed the French government for being a party to intolerable injustice, Michael Moore in "Fahrenheit 9/11" has launched an unapologetic attack, both savage and savvy, on an administration he feels has done extensive damage in the world.

Wearing its determination to bring about political change on its sleeve, "Fahrenheit" can be nipped and second-guessed, but it can't be ignored.

Both in form and impact, "Fahrenheit" goes a step beyond Moore's Oscar-winning "Bowling For Columbine." He's never made a documentary that so literally embodies the cliché of being ripped from today's headlines, that arrives in theaters precisely as the issues he's concerned with are getting maximum attention within the context of a heated presidential campaign.

A LOT ON HIS MIND: We all—even the president—remember where we were.

It's a tribute to how seriously Moore takes his secular crusade that he's largely abandoned his usual haphazard style in favor of a more concentrated mode of attack. And there is less of the director himself, although Moore does appear on a Washington street asking congressmen who voted for the war to get their children to enlist.

This film isn't about the Bush family relationship to Saudi Arabia, the excesses of the Patriot Act or the pitfalls of the invasion of Iraq, though it touches on those events.

Instead we get a full-blown alternative history of the last three-plus years. Moore makes a persuasive and unrelenting case that there is another way to look at things beyond the version we've been given.

What anger Moore has left over after savaging the administration is directed at the mainstream media for being too in thrall with the official line ("Navy SEALs rock!" exults "Today's" Katie Couric in one clip.)

The core of "Fahrenheit's" appeal comes in Moore's alternating familiar images with footage many Americans may not have seen. The cumulative effect of experiencing everything together in one place is easily the most powerful piece of work of Moore's career.

Perhaps the most disturbing of all is footage showing the president on the morning of Sept. 11, continuing with a photo op involving a Florida elementary school class reading "My Pet Goat" for nearly seven minutes after having been told that a second plane had hit the World Trade Center.

It's an unflattering picture of irresolution and even paralysis, one that informs Moore's thesis—of a president in over his head—that pervades the entire film. KENNETH TURAN (LOS ANGELES TIMES)

The Vanilla Men

FILM | The rowdy "White Chicks" has Shawn and Marlon Wayans, handsome, buff and African-American, passing themselves off as a pair of white socialite sisters who seem rather clearly inspired by Paris and Nicky Hilton.

Thanks to the wizardry of make-up artists Greg Cannom and Keith VanderLaan, the Wayans brothers' transformation is convincing, if a little eerie. Their blond, blue-eyed Brittany and Tiffany Wilson are broad-shouldered and have awfully big hands for girls, but they pass, however clumsily.

Marcus and Kevin Copeland (Marlon and Shawn, respectively) are a pair of feckless FBI agents assigned to escort two heiresses threatened with kidnapping from the airport to their hotel in the Hamptons. Thanks to a small dog and a minor accident, the sisters get very slightly banged up. Of course, they refuse to be seen in public. Marcus and Kevin must impersonate the sisters publicly if they want to save their jobs.

Directed by Keenen Ivory

WHITE LIKE HIM: "Oh no you did-unt!" turns out to be the universal language.

Wayans, "White Chicks" is off and running from frame one, and with Marcus and Kevin in drag, it shifts into high gear.

The faux Wilson sisters are instantly latched upon by three pals, Karen (Busy Philipps), Lisa (Jennifer Carpenter) and Tori (Jessica Cauffiel) from whom Marcus and Kevin not only pick up pointers about hair, make-up and clothes but also discover how vulnerable women can be when they strive for perfection. The Wayans could easily have poked fun at these three, but that they treat them with compassion gives an edge to their film's abundant laughter. KEVIN THOMAS (LOS ANGELES TIMES)

The Web-Master

Hollywood oddity Sam Raimi brings 'Spider-Man' to life

DIRECTORS | Much like Peter Parker was transformed from gangly teen into the web-slinging crime-fighter, dapper director Sam Raimi was catapulted from cult-filmmaker status to master of one of Hollywood's largest franchises.

Sam Raimi, the filmmaker behind 2002's blockbuster "Spider-Man" and the upcoming sequel "Spider-Man 2," compares adapting Stan Lee's Marvel Comics hero to being one of the oral storytellers of ancient times.

"With great power comes great responsibility is the theme of Stan Lee's comic book, and it is what I've tried to push through with these pictures. And I do feel that I have a responsibility to protect it," said Raimi, 44.

"Spider-Man 2" tests Peter Parker's commitment to the superhero profession. Peter's working two jobs, falling behind in college and perpetually exhausted from swinging from building to building to catch bad guys, and beset by personal problems.

When Raimi was picked by Sony Pictures and Marvel Studios to tell the story of "Spider-Man," he was a daring choice for Hollywood. Raimi had never had a major hit. He had a zealous following among horror fans for his 1983 cult classic "The Evil Dead" and its two follow-ups, "Evil Dead II" and "Army of Darkness," along with 1990's "Darkman." Other filmmakers worshipped Raimi, whose frantic camera movements on "The Evil Dead" have influenced two decades of action pictures.

With a $400 million success behind him, it's hard now to imagine the franchise movie without him.

However, he did go into the sequel knowing if its receipts did not live up to the first one, it might be considered a failure.

He tried to put the bottom line out of his mind: "I just said, 'I'm going to make the best picture I can,'" Raimi said. "I'm just going to put in what I love, and hopefully ... other people will love it, too."

Reviews by The Washington Post's Ann Hornaday, Stephen Hunter, Michael O'Sullivan and Desson Thomson.

BAADASSSSS (R, 145 minutes) Mario Van Peebles's on-screen impersonation of his father, filmmaker Melvin, would like to be seen as an homage to the man who made the critically polarizing but historically important 1971 film "Sweet Sweetback's Baadasssss Song." It captures the period well enough, but never bothers to tell us why the elder Van Peebles's efforts to get this mediocre film made mattered. (MO)

THE CHRONICLES OF RIDDICK (PG-13, 115 minutes) In this convoluted follow-up to "Pitch Black," Vin Diesel reprises his role as the space adventurer Richard P. Riddick. The muddy story essentially revolves around the star's cool-guy poses and one-liners. It's for Diesel fans only, at best. (DT)

CONTROL ROOM (unrated, 84 minutes) Jehane Noujaim's gripping account of the Iraq war as seen through the eyes of the Arab satellite news channel al-Jazeera, may be the first movie of the year to qualify as urgently important. Thoughtful, carefully calibrated and often infuriating, this engrossing portrait of competing notions of truth is at once a thrilling real-time chronicle of the birth of a free press and a sophisticated philosophical treatise on the nature of objective reality. (AH) fitness center called Globo Gym. Vince Vaughn is also funny as Peter La Fleur, the lackadaisical owner of a rival gym, Average Joe's. The movie's full of down-and-dirty gags, one-liners and memorable scenes between laid-back Peter and the almost psychotically intense White. (DT)

HARRY POTTER AND THE PRISONER OF AZKABAN (PG, 142 minutes) Alfonso Cuarón has made a grim, atmospheric movie that is so much more sophisticated than its predecessors, both visually and in terms of storytelling, that it's hard to believe the source material is the same. "Azkaban" excels at capturing—and elaborating on—the details that make the books such a delight. (NICOLE ARTHUR)

film, TV producer Joanna Eberhart (Nicole Kidman) learns that her new location, the genteel Connecticut suburb of Stepford, is the land of Betty Crocker gone insane, where husbands have turned their wives into insanely enthusiastic homemakers and sex-on-demand nymphos. Screenwriter Paul Rudnick goes for the jokes by the bagful, but he and director Frank Oz come up hackneyed when trying to make fun of WASP snobbery, mass consumption and male insecurity. (DT)

THE STORY OF THE WEEPING CAMEL (PG, 90 minutes) Film students everywhere should be heartened by this movie, which follows a family of Mongolian herders as one of their camels gives birth to—and rejects—an albino baby. It's a lyrical blend of documentary and fiction filmmaking techniques, and offers a bold example of the rewards of crossing boundaries—stylistic, cultural, temporal and even commercial. (AH)

THE TERMINAL (PG-13, 128 minutes) Foreign visitor Viktor Navorski (Tom Hanks) lands in New York's JFK airport, only to find himself stateless when his (fictional) country undergoes a military coup. So begins a physically claustrophobic yet highly entertaining caper set in a mini-universe of Starbucks, Borders, escalators and pushcarts. Director Steven Spielberg knows how to make a great story out of relatively little. (DT)

Tom Hanks as Viktor Navorski, man without a country or place to shower.

NOIR EXPRESSIONISM: The postwar thriller "The Third Man," screening this weekend at AFI Silver, was as famous for its haunting zither score as it was notorious for a vision of Europe—in this case Vienna—as a claustrophobic, trust-nobody, black-market free-for-all. Orson Welles stars.

Reality's Battle of the Bands

FOX VS. CBS | Stepping into the high-stakes game of chicken that is reality TV, Fox Television Studios is risking war with one of the genre's hottest producers, Mark Burnett, over rival music shows.

Fox has clinched a deal with the formerly chart-topping R&B group TLC for an unscripted series, according to sources.

The show would feature contestants competing to replace band member Lisa "Left Eye" Lopes, who was killed in a car crash in 2002. The winner would then join the trio's surviving members, Tionne Watkins and Rozonda Thomas, for recordings and possibly a televised concert.

But Burnett, famed for his work on CBS's hit unscripted series "Survivor," has his own tragedy-stricken group that needs head-hunting help. CBS announced on Wednesday it has closed a deal to pick up his new reality series, "Rock Star," which promises to find a lead singer for the '80s band INXS, whose frontman Michael Hutchence died in 1997.

"It just makes me laugh," Burnett said. "If I decide to produce a show called 'Dog---,' I'll get a call saying there's a new show someone's doing" with the same concept.

ERIK S. LESSER/AP

Fox declined to comment. But one executive close to the TLC deal said that Fox was already negotiating with the group when Burnett began publicly discussing "Rock Star." Indeed, the studio had mulled other bands, including Queen, whose lead singer, Freddie Mercury, died in 1991. Taking a swipe at Burnett's project, the executive added: "I don't think anyone cares about INXS anymore."

ON TV THIS WEEKEND

TGI NEWS
When did Friday become news night? All major networks now schedule newsmagazines on Friday nights, and PBS has Bill Moyers and Tucker Carlson as ideological bookends.

This Friday night, ABC presents PETER JENNINGS: GUANTANAMO (Fri., 10 p.m., ABC), a special report investigating the fates of more than 600 prisoners from 40 countries who have been held without legal rights or representation for years. As this program was being prepared, the Supreme Court was deciding on two landmark cases challenging the detentions.

BOY MEETS GIRL, GIRL FREEZES BOY

WHIP IT: Emeril and Linda introduce kids to the joys of thoroughly pureed food.

shocker film explores a mind-boggling question: What if a group of sexy sorority sisters were really extraterrestrial beings out to seduce randy college freshman and freeze them to death with their tentacles?

If you try real hard you can find some kind of "Stepford Wives"-type satire here, but for the most part the movie argues the point that the mere whiff of sex, even sex with frigid aliens, turns young men into blithering idiots.

GRAB SOME CHIPS AND TUNE IN
In the Nick News special LOOK BEFORE YOU EAT (Sun., 8:30 p.m., Nickelodeon), host Linda Ellerbee says that "if kids learn how to make healthy choices now, they'll eat healthy for the rest of their lives." Ellerbee has come to personify the "eat your vegetables" school of television entertainment, so she's a natural here. To spice things up, she's invited chef Emeril Lagasse to keep the kids awake with a "bang" or two and "take it up a notch" when they start to nod off from sugar deprivation.

100 REASONS TO WATCH 100-BEST LISTS ON TV
A&E teams up with Forbes magazine to present the CELEBRITY 100 (Sun., 10 p.m., A&E). As if anyone needs an excuse to make a list of celebrities. Much like Colonel Sanders's chicken, this compilation is based on a secret formula that assesses celebrities' financial assets as well as their popularity via the number of times they appear in Internet searches and on magazine covers, and are mentioned on television, radio or in print.

TRIUMPH OF THE ASHLEES
Today's celebrities are so 2004. Want to see the stars on the cusp of tomorrow's hype machine? THE CLASS OF '05 (Sun., 8 p.m. Biography) introduces the stars you might not have heard of yet, but will be

REVENGE
Well, Diana Did Refer To Her as 'The Rottweiler'

In love letters to PRINCE CHARLES, CAMILLA PARKER BOWLES told how she yearned for him and urged her lover to withstand "the onslaughts of that ridiculous creature," Diana, the Daily Mail reported Thursday. Parker Bowles urged Charles not to feel guilty about their liaison and promised to be his "forever." She described how her "heart and body aches" to be with him. "I yearn to be with you day and night, to hug, comfort and love you." (AP)

BABS
'And You Don't Bring Me Swing Votes Anymore ...'

BARBRA STREISAND and Neil Diamond performed their hit duet and karaoke bar favorite, "You Don't Bring Me Flowers," for the first time in 24 years Thursday, raising $10 million for John Kerry. A longtime Democrat, Babs came out of retirement to sing for Kerry, who was reportedly among the 2,000-member audience. (EXPRESS)

Canada Is So Cute!

Awww .... Canada has its very own Walk of Fame. A thousand or so fans gathered along the red carpet Wednesday to await the arrival of this year's inductees, which included hockey's Mario Lemieux, Steppenwolf's John Kay and everyone's JIM CARREY, along with daughter JANE. "I couldn't have done it without you," Carrey told Canada. AWWW! (EXPRESS)

REUNIONS
Will Sing for Flat Soda

DESTINY'S CHILD will perform together for the first time in nearly two years as part of the Pepsi "Play for a Billion" TV game show on ABC this fall. They will sing songs from their upcoming album before a live audience in Los Angeles this September. One song will air on "Play for a Billion" on Sept. 12, Pepsi-Cola Co.

announced Thursday. "We are really looking forward to getting back on stage and performing together as a group," Beyonce said in a statement. Their next album is scheduled for release in November. "Play for a Billion," with Damon Wayans as host, will offer a $1 billion grand prize but also guarantees that one finalist will win $1 million even if the grand prize isn't awarded. (AP)

COMEBACKS
Agent Schedules Comeback for Mariah

MARIAH CAREY's new agent, Rob Light, announced plans Thursday to revitalize her flagging career. She is writing a children's book about a biracial orphan girl, which Light said could be turned into an animated series. "It's something she's worked on without the help of ghostwriters," Light said his agency may use her songwriting skills to write hits for other artists, jingles and commercials. (EXPRESS)

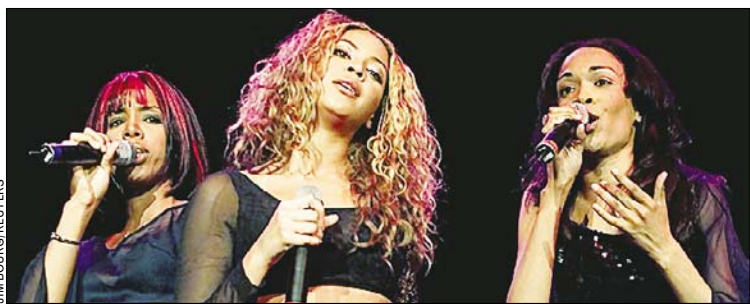

PILGRIMS
Israelis Line Up for Madonna Tour ... No, Wait

MADONNA/ESTHER is planning to tour holy places in Israel in October with a group of more than 100 students studying Kabbalah, the Israeli newspaper Maariv reported Thursday. Madonna's trip is planned to coincide with the Jewish New Year. Madonna will stay in an out-of-the-way guest house and avoid fans and TV cameras so she will be able to focus on her Kabbalah studies. LAWSUITS KoRn Gets SuEd, YeAh!

Korn's JONATHAN DAVIS was sued for $4 million on Tuesday for breach of contract in Los Angeles. Criminal artifact collector Arthur Rosenblatt said Davis agreed to help him launch a crime museum to showcase his collection, which included Ted Bundy's Volkswagen, among other morbidly fascinating items. He claimed Davis never paid any money and threatened his life on various occasions. (EXPRESS)

TO THE EDITOR

EVERY DAY I FIND the Metro platforms and trains littered with copies of Express. Although you do run a "Read. Ride. Recycle." message next to your banner some days, it doesn't seem to be helping.

Since a large number of Express readers seem to think that whenever the paper falls is an appropriate trash can, perhaps instead of handing out papers outside the stations, Express should have people on the platforms and trains to pick up the trash.

Horoscope | Stella Wilder

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Something that was merely routine yesterday may seem far more urgent to you; fortunately, you have what it takes to do something about it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — You must try to balance the negative comments that come from your own lips with the positive thoughts that you are having about friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — You're going to have to go out of your way to get what it is you really want — if, indeed, you want it by day's end. Get ready for some work.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Anger is a powerful emotion, and you must be careful that you don't let it blind you from the truth that is right in front of you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Someone you've known well for some time will bring a surprise right to your doorstep before the day is out. Prepare yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Take care that your efforts are not so obvious that you are an easy mark for those who would stand in your way. Use strategy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Throw away all that extra baggage; it's time to clean out the hidden corners of your life and get things in better order.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — You and a partner are just about to hit upon something big, but you and he or she must remain civil, willing to keep communication open and honest.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — You may be unusually vulnerable, but you can also protect yourself if you are able to spot coming dangers in time.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — You may have to increase security around the home after receiving some kind of cryptic warning from friends or neighbors. Be cautious.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Avoid over-analyzing everything that happens to you; remember that some things simply cannot be explained — or entirely understood.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — It's up to you to tone things down, or you're likely to find that neither you nor the competition can give what is truly required.

LIVE ONLINE

The TV Life

From washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Post TV columnist LISA DE MORAES was online Thursday to discuss her job and some current TV fare.

Are you soooooo loving "The Simple Life 2"? That was so funny Wednesday night when they were reading the poems about nudism.

I adore "Simple Life" and the second edition is terrific, possibly better than the first. Their visit to the nudist colony was one of the funniest things I've seen in ages. The wonder is that network execs who appreciate how funny this show is also think "Quintuplets" is funny, and "Method & Red."

Although I know the show has no basis in reality, I really love ABC's "I'm With Her." Will it return? There was a cliffhanger (kinda) series finale, so I assume the show will resume. I'm wondering when.

That is so sweet of you to think that because a show ended on a cliffhanger it will resume. Alas, it's not coming back and you will never find out how it ended.

How do you do it — multiple TVs? Picture in picture? TiVo? What about a social life? I mean, cool job, but I'd expect burnout or brain damage to start to creep in.

No social life to speak of, although I do have one girlfriend whose house I do occasionally have dinner at, accompanied by my dogs. We watch TV while eating and playing with the hounds. And brain damage crept in a year ago. I actually used to be a really intelligent, interesting person and I could even spell.

In a few more years I'll be able to do PSA's for the "Turn Off TV Week" folks, in which they show me on the screen and warn parents, "See, this is what will happen if your kids continue to watch TV at this rate."

Today on Live Online

11 A.M.: Rep. Charles B. Rangel, D-N.Y., will discuss the Michael Moore documentary film "Fahrenheit 9/11" and why he gives it a thumbs up.

NOON: David Bossie, president of Citizens United, a conservative grass roots advocacy group, will discuss why he gives "Fahrenheit" a thumbs down.
